

GOT LOVE?

The qualities listed in this rating scale are derived from 1 Corinthians 13, the “love chapter.” They are both negative and positive qualities that “make or break” a relationship. Scientific research into what makes relationships work has substantiated these qualities as powerful supports or assaults upon the relationship. Please enter a value based on a scale of 1-10 for each quality. Ten is the highest, zero is the lowest. Rate positive and negative qualities from 1-10, even though the values are essentially contradictory. The results will be graphed and discussed. Taking ownership is essential to the healing of your family, so be honest and candid.

Your name:

Positive Qualities	Rate yourself
Patient with the children
Proactively kind to children
Happy for the successes of children
Willing to suffer for the good of the children
Validating and encouraging toward children
Hopeful about the children
Committed to children even in hard times
Negative Qualities
Jealous of children
Boastful of personal success or assets, self-righteous
Attitude of, feeling and acting superior
Rude and negative to children or others
Selfishly detached from children
Easily angered, hot-headed
Quick to recount wrongs done
Happy at the failings of children
Give up on relationship and children	